

Jack Pink

Paralegal

I am a paralegal in Fox Williams' dispute resolution department, focusing on a wide range of legal matters across the experienced team, with an emphasis on civil litigation, fraud & securities.

Jack is a dedicated paralegal in our dispute resolution department, providing expert advice to clients in a variety of disputes and areas of litigation.

After graduating with his Master of Arts in Law from The University of Law, Jack has built diverse & extensive paralegal expertise across Court of Protection, Intellectual Property, and Dispute Resolution practices.

Before joining Fox Williams, Jack's legal background at Bird & Bird in both the intellectual property department in London and later the dispute resolution department in Sydney saw him work on region & sector-leading cases for international corporations in various jurisdictions. With cases spanning across trademark infringement, defamation, cybersecurity, media, & privacy, Jack brings comprehensive experience for advisory & litigation services at Fox Williams to benefit our clients.

Legal Expertise

- Securities Litigation
- Civil Fraud
- Commercial Litigation
- International Arbitration

Experience

- Lidl v Tesco – IP infringements regarding Clubcard logo and consumer deceit.
- COPA v Wright – Origin of the Bitcoin White Paper.

- Investigating fraud in Swiss banking infrastructure and joint venture companies.
- Monitoring sector updates and drafting client memorandums to provide insights for adapting business operations to be prepared for and operate in line with evolving developments such as governmental privacy reform, greenwashing, & AI regulation.
- Conducting due diligence & document analysis between companies and their technology service providers that have been targeted by cyber-attacks resulting in data breaches and unauthorised access to sensitive data.
- Supporting a confidential review of governance and selection practices within a professional sports league.